This interactive workshop introduces educators to practical, engaging ways of using music in the early years to support children's development. Led by Early Years Educator and professional musician Luke Agius, participants will explore hands-on musical activities that nurture creativity while strengthening gross and fine motor skills. Through guided practice and shared insights from Luke's experience in local and international early childhood settings, attendees will deepen their understanding of how musical learning enriches young children's overall knowledge, engagement, and growth.
